Oslo, Norway is one of the most expensive cities in the world. But that doesn't mean you can't have a great time there on a budget.

Here's a guide to spending 48 hours in Oslo without breaking the bank.

Day 1

- Morning: Start your day with a free walking tour of Oslo. This is a great way to get your bearings and learn about the city's history and culture.
- Afternoon: Visit the Viking Ship Museum. This is one of Oslo's most popular attractions, and it's well worth the admission price. You'll get to see real Viking ships that were built over 1,000 years ago.

- Evening: Have dinner at one of Oslo's many budget-friendly restaurants. There are plenty of great options to choose from, so you're sure to find something to your taste.

Day 2

- Morning: Visit the Munch Museum. This museum houses the world's largest collection of Edvard Munch's artwork, including his famous painting "The Scream."
- Afternoon: Take a ferry to the Bygdøy Peninsula. This is a great place to escape the hustle and bustle of the city and enjoy some peace and quiet. There are several museums on the peninsula, as well as a number of hiking trails.
- Evening: Have dinner at one of Oslo's many rooftop restaurants. This is a great way to enjoy the city's skyline and have a romantic evening.

Tips for Saving Money in Oslo

* Take advantage of free activities. There are plenty of free things to do in Oslo, such as walking tours, visiting museums, and hiking. * Eat at budget-friendly restaurants. There are many great restaurants in Oslo that won't break the bank. * Stay in a hostel or Airbnb. Hostels and Airbnbs are much more affordable than hotels. * Use public transportation. Oslo has a great public transportation system that is affordable and easy to use. * Take advantage of discounts. Many museums and attractions offer discounts for students, seniors, and families.

Oslo is an expensive city, but it's still possible to have a great time there on a budget. By following these tips, you can save money and enjoy all that Oslo has to offer.
