In the winter of 1941, Lina Juseviciute, a young Lithuanian woman, is forced to flee her home with her family as the Nazis invade. They trek through snow-covered forests, desperate to escape the advancing enemy. But tragedy strikes when Lina's father is killed, and her family is separated.

Alone and afraid, Lina wanders through the frozen wilderness, searching for her loved ones. She encounters other refugees, desperate and starving. Together, they form a makeshift family, finding strength in each other's company.

As the war rages on, Lina and her companions face unimaginable hardships. They are hunted by the Nazis, endure forced labor, and witness the horrors of the Holocaust. But through it all, they never give up hope.
