These are the five faces of human experience, and they are all interconnected. We are monsters because we are capable of great cruelty and violence. We are mana because we are also capable of great love and compassion. We are alienated because we are often disconnected from ourselves, from others, and from the world around us. We are Apollo because we are always striving for perfection, even though we know that it is impossible. We are Gemini because we are always two-sided, always pulled in different directions.

Monster Mana Alienation Apollo Gemini is a groundbreaking new book that explores the complex and often contradictory nature of human experience. Through a series of interconnected essays, the book delves into the depths of our psyche, exploring our fears, our desires, our alienation, and our search for meaning.
